17 Meet Death On Me. Roads Last Month

Seventeen persons died in fourteen motor vehicle accidents in Maine during the month of September—three more than the number killed during the same month last year. September's deaths raised Maine's road fatalities to 122 for the first nine months of 1953 as compared with 101 for the same period of 1952.

Seven passengers, six pedestrians, three drivers and one bicyclist died were September's highway victims. Nine people died in seven urban accidents; eight lost their lives in seven rural crashes. Pedestrian deaths totaled thirty for the nine-month period—four under last year's mark at this time. However, this slight gain has been more than offset by the sharp increase in the number of car occupant deaths.

This is the time of year when motorists and pedestrians must gear their driving and their walking to meet the radical change in conditions brought about by the seasonal shortening of daylight hours plus the return to Standard Time. The dangerous dark hours come earlier now. Many of us who have been accustomed to driving or walking home from work by daylight now find ourselves overtaken by dusk or darkness before the trip home has been completed. This change comes about so suddenly that we may be caught with our summertime driving and walking habits still in use. We must allow more time, if driving, for the trip from our work to our homes, because the change in visibility definitely calls for a reduction of driving speed.

As pedestrians, we must remember that extra caution is necessary on our part. The deceptive half-light of twilight and the dark hours which follow make it much more difficult for motorists to see and to avoid walkers.

The last three months of the year are unusually dangerous from a traffic standpoint. Let's make certain that we compensate for this fact being unusually careful on the streets and highways.

ANNUAL EXTENSION ASSN. MEETINGS START THIS WEEK

This week marks the opening of the series of annual meetings of county Extension Associations in Maine. All people interested are invited to attend. The sessions feature food, fun, and facts. This week meetings are scheduled Thursday at Poland Town Hall, Friday at Exeter Grange Hall, Friday evening at Milo Town Hall, and Saturday evening at Ellsworth City Hall. Next week they're scheduled Monday evening at the Elks Home in Sanford; Tuesday evening at Benton Grange Hall; Wednesday evening at Association Hall in South Paris; Thursday at Union High School and at Washington State Teachers College in Machias; and Thursday evening in Farmington Community Building and at Gorham State Teachers College.

Mrs. Dale Thurston and children are visiting relatives at Rumford. Mr. and Mrs. Earl Eldridge of Augusta were recent guests of his aunt, Mrs. Gladys Bean.

Mrs. Joseph Page was in Portland Tuesday to meet her husband on his return from duty in Korea.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Davis spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Jerrold Davis at Cheshire, Mass.

The Week in Oxford County

Fire destroyed a warehouse of H. C. Baxter & Co., in Fryeburg, Tuesday. Around 15,000 cases of corn and labeling equipment were in the building. The loss was unofficially estimated at $125,000. Camp owners at Silver Lake recently built a firehouse. It is located near Mayflower Inn at Roxbury. Its equipment is a gasoline pump, 1,000 feet of hose and an inhalator. A loss of $4,000 was estimated by Fire Chief Linwood Jordan when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the home of Mrs. Constance Chasalon and her three small children on Popple Hill, Mexico, Tuesday.

Relatives, neighbors and friends to the number of 50 gathered at the home of Eldred Hammond, East Sumner, Sunday for the harvesting bee. A large amount of work was accomplished, including 25 bushels of potatoes, 500 bushels of apples, and wood sawed donated by George Spaulding. Dinner and lunch in the afternoon were served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cole.

FORMER BETHEL COUPLE HONORED ON GOLDEN WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Clark Adams of Shelburne, N. H., celebrated their golden anniversary October 14th, when a group of friends and relatives met to honor them at the Gorham Methodist Church vestry on that evening.

An entertainment was presented of solos, readings and group singing.

A buffet lunch was served with Mrs. Mark Rix and Mrs. Walter Purlington as pourers. The table centerpiece was a bouquet of golden mums. The appointed table was decorated with golden tapers and a large two tiered decorated 50th anniversary cake served as the centerpiece and was cut and served by Mr. and Mrs. Adams.

The honored guests were presented with gifts of money from friends and relatives and numerous congratulatory cards of best wishes.

Mary Ellen Peabody and Alfred Clark Adams were married Oct. 14, 1903, at Shelburne at the old homestead, where they are now residing. Except for a few years in Bethel, Maine, they have always made their home at the old homestead in Shelburne. They have one son, Eldon, of Gorham, a daughter, died at four years of age. They have three grandchildren, June, Linda and Forest Adams of Gorham.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Adams are members of the Gorham Methodist Church. Mr. Adams is a lay leader of the Church and Mrs. Adams is a member of the Senior WSSC.

Miss Carla Grover won first prize at the talent show in Andover Monday night. Miss Grover played the piano. Several from this vicinity attended the event.

Dr. and Mrs. John Trivard are attending the New England Dental Convention in Boston. Their children are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Greenleaf, at Norway.

Mrs. Katherine Bennett has a gladiolus which has remained in bloom until this Thursday morning's frost. The plant is with two others which have blossomed during the fall in a window box.

Mrs. Hannah Dock returned to her home in Woodstock, N. Y., Friday. She was accompanied by Norman Dock and sons, Stephen and Roger, who visited relatives in North Bergen, N. J., while away.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Ireland visited their son, Richard Ireland, and family at Springfield, Vt., last week, and Mr. Ireland attended a meeting of the Northern Private School Headmasters at The Country School, Woodstock.

Those from town attending the wedding of Miss Carolyn Shorey and J. Maynard Austin at Belfast Saturday were Mrs. H. P. Austin, Mrs. W. J. Upson, Miss Frances Hodgdon, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Lord, Dwight Lord, and the Misses Methel and Ida Packard.

A Cub Scout Round Table Discussion was held at South Paris last Saturday afternoon. Attending from Bethel were Den Mothers, Mrs. Blanche Bennett and Mrs. Phyllis Smith, Cubmaster Pat Greiner, and Pack Committeemen, Charles Eypner and John Howe.

The next Round Table is scheduled to be held in Bethel on Nov. 12. Members of the Happy Herdmen 4-H Club who attended the annual Oxford County 4-H Exhibition at South Paris Saturday included Kent Taylor, Jud Howe, Jane Smith, Deloy Chapman, Florence Merrill, Nancy Davis, Charles Dwight and Emerson Merrill, Carolyn Chapman, Timmy and Tommy Carter, Bobby Chadbourn and Philip Kortanen.

Co. Ext. Assn. Meets Oct. 28

William Chapman, President of Oxford County Extension Association will preside at the Annual Meeting of this organization which will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 28, at the South Paris Association Hall.

Included in this meeting besides the regular business is a demonstration on Soil Conservation by Ernest Maherry, 4-H club member of the South Paris "Hungry Hollow Hic Hoe Club" election of 1954 officers; green pasture report by Dick Fox, of Fryeburg; musical selections by a men's quartet of Buckfield—members, James E. Warren, Keith W. Percival, Don Nicol, and Ernest Fogg. This meeting terminates the annual membership campaign and reports will begin by the opposing captains, Warren Abbott, of Rumford, and Florence Hastings, of Bethel.

Mrs. Dorothy Clarke Wilson, of Orono, will be the featured speaker at the meeting. Her subject, "India," will be of special interest to Extension women, since India is the country currently studied by Extension Groups in their "Know Your Neighbor" project.

Mrs. Wilson is no stranger to the people in this area. Her husband, Rev. Edwin L. Wilson, is a native of Bethel. Mrs. Wilson's literary work includes over 50 religious plays and four published novels: "The Brother," "The Herdsman," "Prince of Egypt," and "House of Earth."

In 1950, Mrs. Wilson made a six months tour of India and the Middle East, under the auspices of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church in order to gather material for her writings. While there she covered the country of India in all its areas, using every sort of conveyance from bullock cart to airplane and took about 400 colored pictures, which since her return, she has used as the basis of many lectures, sharing parts of her experiences and her intense interest in India with over 150 different groups to date. While admitting that the high point of her trip was undoubtedly an invitation to lunch at the house of Prime Minister Nehru, pictures of which event she proudly includes with every showing, she feels that her most important experiences came with her adventures into Indian villages, for it is on the future of these that the future of the world may well depend. She entitles her lectures "Behind the Mud Curtain."

The place of the meeting is the Association Hall in South Paris at 8 o'clock. A supper is being served by the mothers of the South Paris high school seniors at 6:30 at the Congregational Church, 1 South Paris, at which time 20 and 30-year members are being honored.

Oxford County people are setting aside the date Wednesday, Oct. 28, to attend this annual affair of county-wide interest. The public is cordially invited.

MUSIC APPRECIATION GROUP

On Thursday, October 15, Walter Marcuse gave the first lecture of a series in Music Appreciation. The course is being given every other week at the Gould Academy Music Room. Mr. Marcuse is conducting the series from a beginner's point of view, yet it is interesting for anyone who wishes to know more of the appreciation of music.

Next Thursday, October 29th, will be the second lecture in this series. It will not be too late to join the group.

Last week starting with the explanation that the classical idea is one of balance and order, Mr. Marcuse showed how the symphony of Mozart is an example of the classic idea. Giving first a slight background of the period, then an outline of the sonata form, Mr. Marcuse played the principle themes on the piano in the first movement of Mozart's "Symphony No. 41 in E flat." This was followed by a recording of the first movement.

Mrs. Grace Taylor will be a graduate of the School of Practical Nursing conducted by Household Nursing Association at Boston Saturday.

P. T. A. Holds 1st Meeting

The first fall meeting of the Parent-Teachers Association was held at Crescent Park School on Thursday evening, Oct. 15, with a good attendance. President Richard Carter called the meeting to order.

The Secretary's report of last meeting was read and accepted. The Treasurer's report stated a balance of $262.17 in the treasury.

The Secretary, Josephine Whitman, asked to be relieved from her position. Rita Davis volunteered. A motion was moved and seconded to accept her offer.

The President reported the Canteen Project would be supervised by the PTA with Jay Willard, chairman, for October, November and December.

A report of the 1953 Membership Drive, Emily Saunders, June Greig and Eva Perry, committee, was given by June Greig. The Primary School brought in approximately 410 memberships amounting to $205.80. Mrs. Howe's "Indians" reported 109 members and Mrs. Van's "Yankees" were close with 105. Al Grover (Indians) brought in 35 and Barbara Jan Hutchinson 12. Each one received a prize of $2. A party for the winners will be held in the near future. $1.50 came in late, making a balance of $201.50 to be turned over to the PTA. Last year 34 memberships were recorded. We agree the Primary School children are the better salesmen.

Rita Davis is to see about subscriptions to the National Parent-Teachers Magazine. It was voted to buy a new book for the secretary. The attendance banner was won by the Junior Primary Grade. The refreshment committee for the next meeting, Mrs. Avery Angewine and Mrs. Richard Carter, 7th grade mothers.

Mrs. Faye Taylor, in charge of the program presented Phyllis Dock, pianist; Clayton Bane, guitarist; Kenny Goldard, bass violin; Johnnie Nowlin, soloist. In a program of music designed for your listening pleasure. A group of songs: These Foolish Things, Harbor Lights, As Time Goes By, Waltz numbers Memories, Carolina Moon, Let the Rest of the World Go By, Selections—These Are the Things I Love, Dock's Little (an original composition), Vava Con Dina concluding with the strains of These Foolish Things. Mrs. Dock then introduced Gene White and his guitar, presenting "Your Cheating Heart," "Mansion on the Hill" and "Hank Snow's The Gold Rush is Over." The audience thoroughly enjoyed the program and the PTA wishes to thank them all for their fine presentation.

Refreshments were served by the 8th grade mothers, Mrs. Donald Chetelat, Mrs. Norman Greig, and Mrs. Louis Van Den Kerkhoven.

REV. HERVEY W. CHAPMAN—OLDEST GOULD ALUMNUS—CELEBRATES 103rd BIRTHDAY

Rev. Hervey W. Chapman celebrated his 103rd birthday last Thursday at his home in Oakland, Calif. He is the oldest alumnus of Gould Academy and Bowdoin College, where he graduated in 1873. The son of Timothy Hilliard and Sarah Newell Chapman of Bethel, he went west in 1880 when he was not expected to recover from tuberculosis.

Present at his birthday celebration were three sons, 12 grandchildren and five great grandchildren. A son serving as a missionary in Japan sent greetings.

Pruning Shears Needed

Russia, with the H-bomb and a swiftly expanding striking force, constitutes a very grave and constant threat to our survival. There is no doubt about that. But the threat isn't something new. At least two years ago we knew that Communists who had been permitted to infiltrate our super-secret government projects had sent to Russia all the necessary data to build the H-bomb, and it was publicly acknowledged that the Reds could build it.

Yet in recent weeks confirmation of this fact has brought on talk among some governmental leaders of vast new borrowings, of big out-of-balance spending, of postponed tax reductions so that the "new danger" may be met. In all the Washington pronouncements I've read there has not been one suggestion that the sprawling spending mechanism of the federal government be drawn tightly together, and substantial cuts made in all functions except those essential to a sound economy.

Facing An Emergency

If we have such a dire emergency then let's face it. Families along the Florida and Gulf coasts were told recently that Hurricane "Hannah" rearing up from the Caribbean probably would strike them with destructive force. What did they do? They took emergency measures. They had years of living in a world in which the Hurricane "season" is a clearly seen reality.

Through the years they had made their homes and business houses as Hurricane-proof as possible with special construction, with removable battens and with storm cellars. As "Hannah" was charged closer and closer to the coast, families gave up all of the enjoyments and most of the "necessaries" of life. Parents gathered the children in the safest haven. Johnny's home work Susan's tooth-brush that needed a dentist, and father's "big deal" at the office all were subordinated to the problem of survival. They would be properly attended to—but not until the dire threat from the hurricane had subsided.

Strength Impressive

The threat of Russian Communism with the H-bomb may not subside for a long time. Gen. Alfred Gruenther, supreme commander of NATO, who has spent three years in Europe close to the seat of this state's power, said just last week that Sovietists would not strike so long as we maintained our strength. This seems to be a common sense conclusion based both on the military facts and an understanding of the Communists' thinking.

Russians' dictators are realistic. They remember vividly what happened to Hitler when he miscalculated the strength of the America which turned the tide against him. They do not wish the same fate. They will tide their time, seeking to undermine our strength by the risk of war, the Polish U.S. delegates who deserted the Reds a few weeks ago in New York and now is being given sanctuary here, said the Soviet master strategy is to avoid war at present, and use every undercover means available to undermine the economic, political and cultural foundations of the free world.

The Facts

History shows that the surest way to insure a nation from within is to force it into financial practices. Our real strength, in peace or war, rests upon financial stability. We cannot maintain financial stability if we engage in great new expenditures for H-bomb defense on top of the already tremendous expenditures, the taxes for which are sapping our vigor for wholesome industrial growth. Let's face it. The United States is the first free leader, said: "We shall force the United States to spend itself into bankruptcy."

Certainly we need to build defenses. But in view of the losses of history and Russia's known plan for undermining our strength, shouldn't we give careful consideration to safeguarding our steady financial condition? Heavy emergency printing throughout the government would release adequate money for H-bomb defense. It

DALE CARNEGIE

★ AUTHOR OF "HOW TO STOP WORRYING AND START LIVING" ★

SEVERAL YEARS AGO Tom L. Williams, 1225 So. Park, San Angelo, Texas, developed serious heart trouble. The case was rather unusual because the trouble was not in his heart but in his head.

One evening after a busy day at the office, he rushed home, ate a hurried meal and dropped down in a chair to read a paper. He developed indigestion but the thought occurred to him that it was probably a heart attack. That thought grew until he could scarcely breathe and he thought he was living his last few moments. Eventually he felt better but the experience left him pretty well shaken. He didn't want to go to a doctor fearing confirmation of his fears. On the other hand he was afraid not to go. Eventually he did go and the doctor gave him a clean bill of health. But the problem wasn't licked yet. He reasoned that if he continued to worry about the situation he would bring on a real heart attack.

CARNEGIE

By analyzing his problem he convinced himself that if he had a good sound heart no amount of fright would bring on a fatal heart attack. In other words he replaced his fears and worries with positive, objective thoughts. He also reasoned that if he overdeveloped a heart condition, there was nothing he could do about the situation except live by good rules of health which was what he was doing anyway. Those objective thoughts did not replace the worry in one single moment. But by concentrating on them over a long period of time he was able to eliminate the fear and worry of heart attacks.

Happenings That Affect the Future of Every Individual — National and International Problems Inseparable From Local Welfare

"This winter will be a time of decision for agriculture," writes Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson in the October issue of Country Gentleman. "Decisions are going to be made on farm programs in the next few months that will affect the lives of farmers for years to come. Congress is getting ready to take a new look at farm legislation and to provide a program for the years after 1954."

Mr. Benson's article is entitled, "What Kind of Farm Do We Want?" In order to help provide the answer, his department has asked the national farm organizations to talk over the problem with their members and obtain their views. And Congressional agencies will hold hearings in the principal farming areas as a preliminary to the writing of new legislation.

As he says, our farm program needs to be improved. If they didn't, we wouldn't be facing the serious problems of today. In some fields, there is heavy overproduction. In others, there is underproduction. As Mr. Benson puts it, the present "cost-price squeeze" is a serious warning signal that our agriculture is out of balance with its markets.

In forming our farm programs we must deal with a series of long-range questions in addition to the matter of prices. Some of these questions are, the Secretary says: "What effect will farm programs have on the natural resources of our nation? Do our economic policies and programs encourage soil-building and conservation of land and water, or do they encourage farmers to plow up unutilized soils for a quick profit, only to have the soil wash or blow away later? Do farm programs encourage production that uses up fertility and precious water supplies which we may need desperately in the future? Moreover, he continues, we must keep the population trend in mind—the U. S. is growing at the rate of 2,600,000 new mouths each year.

Mr. Benson then deals with some of the ideas that are emerging now from agricultural leaders. One is that "the farm problem is too complex to be solved by any single method appropriate for all products. The problems of wheat and cotton are far different from those of poultry and vegetables." Another is a two-price plan, which is favored by some groups. Under it, the government would support prices for the part of the crop that is sold domestically, while the balance would be sold for export at competitive prices. Still another is modernization of the parity system so that technological improvements in production would be reflected in the parity index and so, perhaps, lower price supports.

Finally, the Secretary expresses his general philosophy in these words: "We must have a program that will provide opportunities and incentive for the farm family, that gives the family-type an 'even break' with the rest of the economy. It must be a program that makes possible that most important crop of all—our farm boys and girls—and given them an equal opportunity to become well-educated, healthy and vigorous. . . . The supreme test of any government policy, agricultural or other, should be, 'how will it affect the character, morale, and well-being of our people?'"

Saugerties, N. Y., Daily Post: "The principle on which this country's government was founded is that of civilian authority over the military. When the majority of Americans forget this safeguard, it will be an ominous turn in the history of these United States."

It is reported in Washington that the retail-sales-tax idea which the administration entertained for several weeks received such violent reaction from the public it actually scared the public. It was for this reason that President Eisenhower promised that the government would not seek to put a sales tax on articles when the retailer sells them.

The Treasury Department is now studying a plan to put a sales tax at the manufacturer's level. It has been pointed out that such a tax would be passed on to the consumer in higher prices. At the moment it is predicted that the reaction to such a tax and the administration will drop the idea.

All of its problems, taxation is the biggest headache facing the administration. The G.O.P. campaigned on the promise of lower taxes, a balanced budget, and free enterprise. As yet the administration has been unable to meet the lower taxes promise.

It finds itself unable to balance the budget because of rising costs of government operations, foreign commitments, and national security. It can not reduce taxes without a balanced budget and it can not balance the budget with reduced taxes.

As a result the administration has been searching for a way to eliminate unpopular taxes and substitute other measures not so unpopular. Here again it faces an impossible task. The natural result has been that all taxes are unpopular. That is not a new thought as far as the American people are concerned.

cerned. They have never liked paying taxes; they will never like to do so.

President Eisenhower and Adlai Stevenson are not as far apart on foreign policy as most Republican and Democrat politicians would like to believe.

For instance, Stevenson recently suggested that a nonaggression pact with Russia might be a good thing to relieve tension in Europe. Later, after a call at the White House, Stevenson reported that the President is to be "very interested" in the plan.

Stevenson said of the plan: "If Russia was unwilling to accept the proposal it would be rather apparent that her peaceful professions aren't as sincere as they might seem." He added: "It would put the Russians on the spot with respect to their intentions."

The fact that the American people are more religious than at any period in their history is substantiated by a recent report of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U. S. A.

LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

This week I will proceed to tell the teachers how to teach—also tell the mamas and papas how to act, behave and proceed. Surveying the situation and putting 2 and 2 together, I come up with a conclusion that there has been a screw loose some place or we wouldn't now have the highways jammed with discourtesy, law makers jittery and scared stiff if a little delegation of a half dozen shows up and pounds the table, socialism getting a sizeable foothold, baby sitting now being big business. Nobody is exactly happy—maybe by manana—but not today.

But I am an optimist, like the guy who says, please pass the cream versus the gloomy duck who says, pass the milk if there happens to be any left.

At the school house the teacher has to be given the right to demand discipline—the right to lower the boom on the obstreperous. Courtesy needs to be put on every curriculum. WORTH REPEATING

"If Congress is going to revise the tax base it must necessarily consider the NAM proposal of such a tax which, after all, would not be a 'new' tax but rather a means of changing the present inequitable and confusing excise into a sounder, more understandable and non-discriminatory instrument for national revenue." — Woonsocket (R. I.) Call.

"In spite of today's high prices, many enterprises are earning smaller net incomes than used to be the case. This is largely the result of two factors — extremely heavy operating costs, and intense competition among both producers and distributors for the public's patronage." — Melrose (Mass.) Free Press.

"Our rulers will best promote the improvement of the nation by strictly confining themselves to their own legitimate duties, by leaving capital to find its most lucrative course, commodifying their fair price, industry and intelligence their natural reward, idleness and folly their natural punishment, by maintaining peace, by defending property, by diminishing the price of law, and by observing strict economy in every department of the State. Let the government do this; the People will assuredly do the rest." — Lord Macaulay.

"The Eisenhower Administration has trimmed about 80,000 workers from the Federal payroll and will probably cut out about 20,000 more by the end of the year, a survey showed today." — New York Times.

"If to please the people we offer what we ourselves disapprove, how can we afterwards defend our work? Let us raise our standard to which the wise and honest can repair. The event is in the hand of God." — George Washington.

"Both here and abroad it is commonly said that mass production is an American economic miracle. No one can dispute that — as the incredible wealth of goods and services enjoyed by our people attest." — Ansonia (Conn.) Sentinel.

"In the past 18 months gasoline prices in Massachusetts have increased 25 cents a gallon purely as a result of higher state and federal taxes. In the past three years, 16 other states have raised their gas taxes by amounts ranging from one cent to 15 cents a gallon. The public has no protection against excessive taxation. But competition—and the force of public opinion—prevents excessive prices for gasoline or anything else that free enterprise produces." — Montpelier (Vt.) Argus.

"If we are to have efficient and economical government, which is the only kind of government that can assure the perpetuation of free enterprise and the other freedoms, all of us must willingly accept cuts in unnecessary tax spending that affect our pocketbooks, no less than the pocketbook of the other fellow." — Attleboro (Mass.) Sun.

"We are all benefitting today from laboratory developments for which yesterday no use was known. Research and investment are the tried and proven methods to raise generally — whether they be engaged in manufacturing, farming, transportation, or elsewhere, and whether they be wage earners, executives, shareholders, or annuitants. By this process the outer frontiers of fundamental science rapidly become the new frontiers of industry." — The National City Bank of New York.

WORTH THINKING ABOUT

A Way to Get Rid of Butter

At Mansfield, Mo., Ozark dairymen got tired of hearing about margarine and decided to hold a "Butter Day." About three thousand people showed up to watch a long parade with floats about butter but principally to buy 2,400 pounds of it. Grocers said that was more butter than they usually sold in eight months.

What fetched the customers, we surmise, was not the hoopla but the price. The butter sold at 58 cents a pound, about 20 cents below the market.

We commend this simple story to the attention of the gentlemen who are wrestling with the problem of what to do with the 150 million pounds that the Commodity Credit Corporation has in storage.

The ideas for disposing of the butter have ranged from simple destruction of the food to fantastic giveaway proposals. Here are some of the ideas:

Frozen storage. That's where most of the butter is now but it's relatively expensive and facilities are crowded.

Donation to the school lunch program and Federal and state institutions. That's been going on a long time. But it hasn't stopped the flood of butter.

Give it to needy people in this country and abroad. A stamp program, as in the old relief days, is talked about.

Put on a vigorous promotion campaign. The American Dairy Association is doing that.

Mix butter with vegetable oils and sell it as margarine containing butterfat. Secretary Benson has been toying with this idea.

Not all of these plans are foolish but none seems likely to move all that butter by itself.

Maybe the Ozark dairymen have had the best idea of all, namely to sell the butter for what people will pay for it. That would require a change in the law and a reversal of the support-price philosophy. But these have to come some day anyway, so why not now? — Editorial from Omaha (Neb.) Sunday World-Herald.

V. A. NEWS LETTER

The Veterans Administration this week salutes the newest member of its hospital team for the treatment and care of disabled veterans: vocational counseling.

More than a year ago, VA began a program designed to help handicapped patients decide on some field of employment suited to their capabilities after their release from the hospital. VA says that fewer patients so helped return to the hospital as a result of over-reaching themselves in their attempt to earn a living.

Vocational rehabilitation is carried on usually in the hospital's therapy shops. It starts while the patient is being treated and continues throughout his stay in the hospital.

VA specialists counsel the hospitalized patients, and often VA seeks the cooperation of local employers. The employers supply technical advice, or sometimes actual jobs.

Today's disabled veterans being discharged VA hospitals are better suited to become independent, self-supporting citizens, thanks to VA's in-hospital vocational rehabilitation program.

Question and Answer — Q—I wrote a letter to VA and stated that I wanted to apply for disability compensation payments. Is that letter all I'll need in the way of an application?

A—No. VA will send you a formal application, which you must fill out and return. If you send it back to VA within a year from the time you received it, VA will consider as the effective date of your application the date that it received your original letter.

Q—As a disabled veteran, I received an automobile, under VA's program of paying up to $1600 of the cost. Will VA also pay for any repairs that I might need?

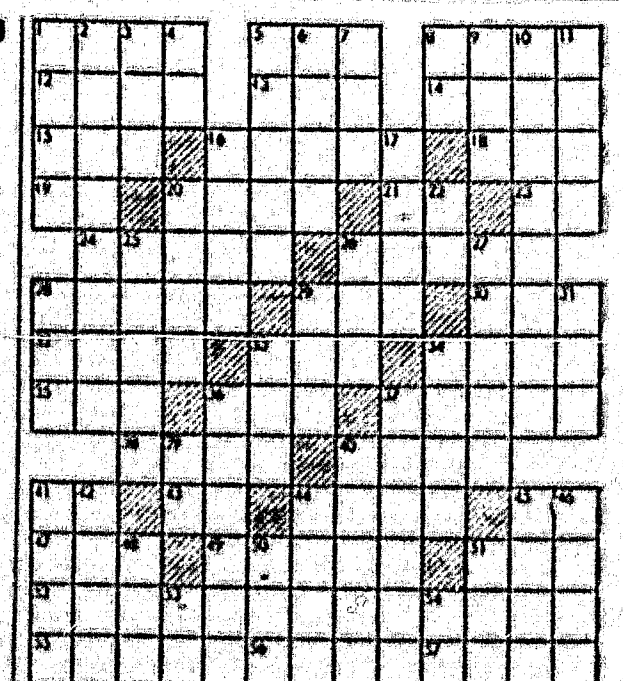

A—No. Under the law, no payment may be made for repairs, maintenance or replacement of your automobile.

Thursday, October 22
Every one... who shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father who is in heaven. (Matthew 10:32, A. S. V.)
Read Acts 5:27-32.

All passengers on a ship, so the story goes, had been ordered below because of the storm at sea. They became alarmed as the waves dashed over the vessel. At last, one of them crept up on deck and came to the pilot, who was faithfully and confidently doing his duty. The pilot saw the terror-stricken man and gave him a reassuring smile. The passenger then went below to comfort the others, saying, "I have seen the face of the pilot, and he smiled. All is well."

There is nothing so effective or so simple as an honest witness-telling what we have seen and heard, and witnessing in our lives to what the Lord has done for us. The power of the Holy Spirit makes us witnesses of Christ, able to confess Him boldly so that our confession honors Him and brings blessings to others and to ourselves. We have a glorious promise that those who confess Him here, He will confess before the Father at the day of judgment.

Prayer
Work Thou in us, O Lord of life by the power of Thy Holy Spirit, help us to be Thy faithful witnesses that men may see Thy light shining in our lives and find the way out of their darkness. For Thy name's sake. Amen.

Thought For The Day
The triumph of God is seen in those who love Christ and witness to Him.

SPORTS FLASHES

From The Sporting News

Derrell Palmer Finds Right Doctor
Back in 1938, two doctors took a look at Derrell Palmer's torn hip muscles and told him to give up football, reports the The All-Sports section of The Sporting News.

Right now he's too busy working at his old stand as the Cleveland Browns' defensive left tackle. In his eighth season as a pro, the cool and competent Texan can be counted on as a bulwark of the Browns' line.

When the doctors told him to quit in 1938 after he was injured in a high school game in Albany, Texas, it didn't slow Palmer up for long. He went looking for a doctor who would see things his way. When he found one and got his okay, he enrolled at Texas Christian and starred for three years. After that came two seasons of service football as a Marine on the Hawaiian Islands and then a job in the pro ranks, says The Sporting News.

One Thirty-Game Winner

In Pro Ball This Year
The 38 minor league produced just one 30-game winner this season, writes Oscar Kahn in The Sporting News. Jack Swift of Marion of the Tar Heel League, whose 25-7 record was all the more noteworthy because there were only 37 pitchers with 20 or more victories, as compared to 88 in the charmed circle in 1952 and 104 in 1951.

Swift, 31-year-old right-hander also boasted one other achievement when he racked up 321 strikeouts to win a second crown as the whit flag of organized baseball. He appeared in 52 games, pitching a total of 287 innings, giving him an average of better than one strikeout per stanza.

Hornaby Ended Fight With One Punch

While Rogers Hornaby has been a stand-out for feuding and breaking with club owners, says The Sporting News as a part of its feature "The Strange Story of Rogers Hornaby," he figured in few brawls on the field during his long career.

One fight, remembered by St. Louis fans, was a one-punch affair. The Cardinals were playing the Phillies in St. Louis and during the game, the Phillies' pitcher left the mound to get a dry uniform shirt.

Hornaby objected. The Sporting News story recalls, but in the argument among Hornaby, Art Fletcher, manager of the Phils, and the umpire, it seemed that the more articulate Fletcher was getting the verbal best of Hornaby. So, without ado, The Rajah landed a right on the button. Fletcher went down, most witnesses agree, and that was the end of the fight. Apparently the umpire were lenient in those days, or thought Hornaby had grounds for retaliation. No punishment was meted out for the one-punch fight.

There is very little to report on this time as things have been rather quiet around this place for the last week. At least if there has been anything happening of interest, I have not heard of it. The one thing that has been bothering me for the last week is what all these new light poles are doing here in town. CMPC had better put some solid foundation around them if they expect them to stay up.

Don't expect this weather to last too long so get your car winterized and inspected before the last day. It might be too late if you wait.

The War Against Beverage Alcohol (Temperance)
Lesson for October 25: Isaiah 5: 11-14; Matthew 18: 6; Romans 13: 11-14; James 4: 17.
Golden Text: Romans 12: 2.

There is unqualified condemnation of beverage alcohol in the passage from Isaiah included in the lesson text. The night clubs of the present may be thought of when we read of the carrying on by night in old Jerusalem in the time of the great prophet. He writes that those who indulged in riotous living did not regard Jehovah and the operation of his hands. This suggests the tragedy of strong drink users at the present; they are forgetful of God and do not live according to his laws. And they are forgetful of the fact that they must drain the bitterness of the drug by and by. Far from bringing happiness, strong drink will bring unhappiness and ruin in the end.

If the great prophet condemned the use of the wines of his day, what would he say, if he were living now, of the distilled drinks of the present?

Jesus warned men of causing little ones to stumble. What a dread responsibility must they bear who invade the homes of the land with their advertisements of liquor!

There is needed much in addition to condemnation of the liquor traffic. Counter measures are needed, some plans to lead men out of the toils of the traffic. In the thought of the apostle Paul the remedy for taking strong drink and all other evil things is the gospel of Christ. Let us strive to magnify the gospel before men that their thoughts may be turned from liquor and all evils.

OXFORD COUNTY BUYS $25,000 IN SAVINGS BONDS IN SEPT.

Oxford County citizens invested heavily in U. S. Savings Bonds during the month of September this year. Sales of Series E and Series H Current Income Bonds in the county for that month amounted to $25,000, as compared to $18,112 during the same month last year, an increase of 38 percent, according to George H. Via of South Paris, County Chairman of the Maine Savings Bonds Committee.

If we can keep up this pace to the end of the year, we might make our quota, Via predicted.

Sales for the State as a whole reached $1,191,994 in September, an increase over the same period of last year of 53 percent, he said.

Maine people are becoming more and more interested in these two sound Government Bonds which yield 5 percent when held to maturity, Via explained, and holders of maturing bonds are continuing to hold onto their bonds for the extra years at 3 percent to a larger extent.

After Wyoming, Star Valley, Idaho, "Farmers must realize that an era of false prosperity will cease have a day of reckoning, and unless they face problems realistically they can be unnecessarily hurt."

THE wife loves to go into the woods in the fall and gather chestnuts, hickories, etc., which she dries many colors for fall housework. Last Tuesday afternoon we made our annual pilgrimage.

Everything goes along fine until we are in the woods. Then the wife sees a vine clinging to a tree which has a strange little cluster of berries on it.

She reached for it and I shouted: "Not that! That's poison ivy!" "Who ever heard of poison ivy having berries?" she asks, and I answer a groan.

"Poison," says I, "you know how poison ivy looks. I know what it is."

"Poison," says she, and proceeds to pluck a great arm load. We catch our breath and find the wife has a big dose of water pitcher and puts it beside the fireplace.

That evening we have guests and they comment on how beautiful her pitcher of "mint" is on the hearth. I notice, however, they all stay clear of it.

Shortly after they depart the wife begins to scratch. Soon her hands and arms are broken out with a rash. Late that night I had to take her to the hospital.

The next afternoon when I visited her she looked anything but happy. "Well, how do you feel, dear?"

"Much better," says she.

"Good," says I, "poison ivy can be very painful sometimes."

She is silent a moment then says earnestly: "It was not poison ivy. And I don't care what the doctor says."

I did not pursue the subject for obvious reasons.

FISH GAME DEPT. CAUTIONS HUNTERS ON CONSTRUCTION AND WOODS CREWS

The Department of Inland Fisheries and Game issues a word of caution to the hunters of the Pine Tree State in an attempt to eliminate or greatly reduce needless hunting accidents during the gunning season now underway.

A Department spokesman pointed out that too many of the State's nimrods go afield without giving any thought to the fact that others besides hunters are in the fields and woods at this time of year.

Numerous construction projects are now underway, rerouting, rebuilding or surveying for stretches of highway throughout the state, sometimes through long stretches of woodland, and in addition woods crews are busy in every section cutting pulp and timber.

Most of these working parties, it was emphasized, will not be wearing the traditional red safety clothing of the hunter and therefore are in considerable danger from careless shooters. According to the Department, too much stress cannot be made on the "Look Before You Shoot" maxim. Safety in the woods is every hunter's responsibility and it is up to him to regard it so.

Rev Herbert Houghton from up Keene, N. H., way visited the Parish the past week end. He had rather a full schedule while here. There was a grand turn out for him at the Sunday Open House at the Earl Browne and Monday evening more than thirty turned out for a gathering at Nancy Veil's home.

While at Open House Sunday I had the opportunity to see Flora Abbott and Charlotte Fillebrown on a divan together chatting away like a nest of Grackles. By their columns in the Advertiser you would think they were at sword's point but in real life they are the best of friends. In last week's paper a Hilda Dillingham sure gave Aunt Flora a call down. All I hear about Mrs Abbott she will go down fighting if she goes down at all.

Barberry Hedge will be open for hunters the month of November. October is nearly past and yet the days have been warm enough to sit outside without coats. Mary Fillebrown had several over for coffee, Tuesday morning, served in the yard. Maybe you would think we have little to do to take off in.

General Finance of Norway

"A FRIENDLY PLACE TO BORROW"

puts John Jones* back in business within two hours!

A TRUE CASE HISTORY IN OUR FILES

Time: Thursday, October 1, 1953, 1 P. M.

Place: Office of GENERAL FINANCE COMPANY, 231 Main St., Norway

Mr. Jones: "Mr. Bean, there was a forest fire in Oxford where I was working this morning and here is all that's left of the power saw you are financing for me." (holds two burnt out parts.)

Mr. Bean: "Mr. Jones, your power saw was fully insured. Go out and buy another saw. We'll finance that for you, too."

Two hours later Mr. Jones returns.

Mr. Jones: "I found me another power saw that I want to buy."

Mr. Bean: "Fine, tell me how much money you need. It will take only long enough to count out the money and hand it over to you."

Mr. Jones: "Mr. Bean, you're a real friend. You put me back in business in two hours."

Mr. Bean: "You're right! That's because GENERAL FINANCE of Norway is 'A friendly place to borrow'."

*Mr. Jones' real name is not given as our dealings are strictly confidential.

GEN. CARTER AGAIN HEADS STATE MARCH OF DIMES

After a lapse of one year, Brig. Gen. George M. Carter again will head the Maine March of Dimes in 1954. It was announced last week by Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

General Carter was Maine March of Dimes chairman for six years from 1947 to 1952. Because of the press of other commitments he was unable to serve in 1953.

"Victory over polio is definitely in sight," Mr. O'Connor said in announcing the appointment.

"When that victory is won, much of the credit will go to General Carter and other volunteer leaders like him."

"At personal sacrifice they have contributed not only their time and talent but an inspiring example of idealistic service to mankind."

Adjutant General of Maine and State Director of Selective Service, General Carter as state March of Dimes chairman will direct and coordinate the activities of county campaign directors throughout the state.

A former educator, he served overseas in World War I. He is a Mason and a member of the American Legion, the Veterans of Foreign Wars and Rotary International.

BEAN WEevil CONTROL IMPORTANT NOW

Maine farmers and gardeners storing dry beans should do everything possible to prevent the bean weevil from damaging or destroying them. Beans should be thoroughly cleaned before beans are stored. Storing the beans at low temperatures or heating them to 125 to 140 degrees for 30 minutes will stop the weevils in their tracks. Fumigation with carbon disulfide or with hydrocyanic acid gas or methyl bromide is also effective if carefully done. The fumigants must be handled with caution. Detailed directions for controlling bean weevils are available from county agents or from the Extension Service at Orono.

GOULD ACADEMY

GOULD GOES DOWN 28-7

At Lyndon Institute last Saturday, Gould met defeat for the first time, after winning three straight. The determined and inspired Volunteers completely outplayed the Huskies for three periods to lead 28-0 as the final period started. The losers rallied to score in the final period after a 23 yard pass-Adams to Burnham, a five yard run by Melville, and then Adams 11 yard run through the center of the line, placed the ball on the 7 yard line. Burnham then plunged for 3 and covered the remaining 4 on his second attempt. Adams placekicked was good.

Lyndon scored once in each of the first 3 periods. In the opener, Goodwin passed to Page which was good for 40 yards and a TD. Manley rushed the extra point. Manley, outstanding for LI, scored the next two TD's from the 2 yard line and the five yard line. Blackwell converted, by rushing, on the first of the two counts. Passing not only scored one touchdown but set up the other two as they completed 4 passes good for 105 yards. Three passes fell incomplete.

Gould attempted 10 passes of which 3 were good for 82 yards with 5 incomplete and 2 intercepted. First downs went 15 for the Institute team and 9 for the Academy. The injured Phil Rowe was kept out of action in this game and his services were greatly missed.

M. C. I. UNDERGRADS HERE SATURDAY

Saturday at 2:00 p. m., Gould will meet the MCI Undergraduate team. It will mark the first meeting of these two clubs with very little known as to their comparative strength. The Huskies have now tasted defeat after three straight victories and Coach Scott is hoping his charges will snap out of their lethargy. Phil Rowe, quarterback sparkling of the team, may be back in action again this week which should help considerably.

According to an announcement by Elwood F. Ireland, headmaster of Gould Academy, the school will play host on November 10 to Dr. Herbert G. Espy, State Commissioner of Education, who will be guest speaker in the evening in the William Bingham Gymnasium.

In connection with Dr. Espy's talk, an informal "Meet the Teachers" get-together will enable the parents of Gould students to visit the various class rooms and laboratories in Hanscom Hall, the main Academy classroom building, where the various instructors in all subjects will have an opportunity to explain their courses in short fifteen-minute periods and to answer questions from interested elders whose children are members of these teachers' class rolls. This will precede Dr. Espy's talk; at the conclusion of four such short periods, all will go to the gymnasium, where refreshments will be served following the guest speaker's address.

A cordial invitation to all parents of Gould students to attend the evening's program, which will start with registration at seven in Hanscom Hall, is extended by Mr. Ireland and the Gould faculty.

On October 21, at 1:00 p. m., Roland Tyler, representative from the Oil Industry Information Committee in Portland, talked at Gould Academy on "A Career in the Field of Petroleum." He mentioned that the choice of which field you went into would depend on your own preferences and aptitudes. He stated that 12% of employed people in this country are occupied in the preparation and distribution of oil and listed seven employment groups as follows: Science-Math-and-Go to College Group, Manual-Mechanical Group, Observational Group, Mechanical Group, Truck Driving-Observational Group, Meet-the-Public Group, and Administrative-Clerical-Personnel Group. He spoke of the necessities and opportunities of petroleum in our every day living. He also mentioned that 60% of those employed in fields of the oil industry are women.

Mr. Tyler, who has been active in the petroleum industry for forty years, was well received by the student body.

STEPHENS HIGH TAKES GOULD 19-36 IN CROSS-COUNTRY

The Rumford Cross Country team proved well balanced as they won five out the first ten places to score a 19-36 victory. Only Captain Lingham, who came in second, was able to score ahead of any of the Rumford men who placed. Clyde Kery won the race in the record-breaking time of 13 minutes and 22 seconds. The record had been held by Conley of Portland at 13:38.

Summary:
1 Kerr (R), 2 Lingham (G), 3 McDonald (R), 4 Robertson (R), 5 Labonte (R), 6 Zulo (R), 7 Hoag (G), 8 Benson (G), 9 Taylor (G), 10 Coolidge (G). Rumford 19—Gould 36. Time 13:22.

The Gould hill and daleers journeyed to Portland on Thursday, October 14, where they were successful in winning a decision over a strong Portland team by a score of 22-35. Captain Bob Lingham of the Gould team was the individual winner.

Edmond J. Vachon held the first in a series of meetings with Junior and Senior boys at Gould Academy on the subject of selective service and the armed services on Monday, October 19. In a series of meetings, to be continued every Monday for the next few weeks, it is the intention to cover the principle regulations of the selective service act and the various opportunities for which boys may prepare if and when they are called into the armed forces.

HAPPY HERDSMEN

On October 14, 1953, the Happy Herdsmen met at the Legion Rooms.

The meeting was called to order by the Vice President, Florence Merrill.

Thirteen members were present. We gave the Flag Salute.

We decided to hold our meetings on the second Wednesday of each month.

We discussed going to South Paris on Saturday, Oct. 17.

Charles Merrill talked about the program for the year.

We voted to choose different members to plan games for each meeting.

Our next meeting will be held November 11, 1953, at the Legion Rooms.

The meeting was adjourned. Refreshments were enjoyed following the meeting.—Secretary, Eleanor Lord.

Each fall the county Extension Association conducts membership campaigns. All Maine residents are eligible to join the Extension Association and receive the many benefits of membership.
